Vision, Focus and Research

NCI's Vision for the FFRDC/FNLCR

- A nucleus for large scale projects which cannot easily be performed elsewhere or through other mechanisms
- A hub for technology development
- A resource to support the intramural and extramural components of the NCI/NIH

Special Nature of the FFRDC/FNLCR

- Serves as an unique, collaborative research and development resource to tackle difficult, urgent, and intractable problems.
  - Why the FFRDC is well-suited for this.
  - Examples of application.

Focus for the FNLCR

- Enhance the FNLCR to maximize the capabilities of an FFRDC
  - Unique acquisition and response capabilities
  - Flexibility
  - Rapid Response
  - Increased Efficiency
- Requirements for providing support:
  - Cannot be achieved as effectively, by other NCI components or through other government mechanisms
  - Cannot compete with the commercial sector
